FUNNY BONE

Funny True Stories

For the second week in a row, my son and I were the only ones who showed up for his soccer team's practice. Frustrated, I told him, "Please tell your coach that we keep coming for practice but no one is ever here."
My son rolled his eyes and said, "He'll just tell me the same thing he did before."
"Which was?"
"That practice is now on Wednesdays, not Tuesdays."
Utah

Upon being reminded to use the toilet after waking up, my four-year-old was thoroughly dismayed: "You mean I'm going to have to go potty every day for the rest of my life?!"
California

Although my daughter wasn't much of a bowler, when her friend's bowling team was down a player, my daughter agreed to fill in. "So how'd you do?" I asked a few days later. She rattled off her scores: "One sixty, one sixty-seven, and one fifty-five."
"Wow! That's great."
"No! One game sixty, one sixty-seven, one fifty-five."
Michigan

During Thanksgiving dinner, my young niece Mackenzie started fiddling with my father's wedding band. Dad said, "That never comes off. You know why? Because I love your nana." That's when Mackenzie informed him, "Nana takes hers off."
Texas

In church, my three-year-old insists on being the one to put the money into the collection basket. One Sunday, as the basket came toward him, he held out the envelope and asked aloud, "When is God coming to pick up his paycheck?"
Missouri

It was a typical noisy dinner at my parents' home, and Dad was having trouble following the conversations. He kept jumping in with off-topic comments and asking for things to be repeated. I finally told him he needed to get a hearing aid. Looking at me as if I were crazy, he said, "What would I do with a hand grenade?"
Missouri

"Can you play with me?" my preschooler asked. "Not now," I said. "I have too much work to do around the house."
Taking my hand, and with the wisdom of one who has lived many a lifetime, he said, "Mom, I have advice for you. When people tell me to do work, I don't listen issue and she made his life pure hell. He lost sight for a split second because he just couldn't take anymore and it has destroyed our lives. Life isn't fair at all.

We have a local newspaper with an editor, and within the last year I have yet to see a real good editorial. We have things going on here that need to be written about with a good editorial view. We have the streets all messed up, tax on water run off, Cannot get anyone to talk about it? No one wants to say anything to upset city hall. I feel we don't have one. The paper is suppose to be the eyes and ears of the people. Where are they at?

I would much rather pay my tax dollars for those who are truly in need. Transgender vitamins, reassignment and related to this are not needs they are wants. I have absolutely zero issue with anyone or their choice, but it doesn't mean I have to pay for it.

Dang, it seems as if the front door of the white house has become a revolving door! What gives here?

Body cameras for the officers in today's world are a must! Camera's do not save lives but they assist in so many ways to protect everyone involved. I feel every force should have mandatory body cameras on the officers at all times while on duty.

To the woman who openly criticized a stranger loudly in public, the only accomplishment was to teach your child how to act like a fool. Enough said.

President Trump has done the right thing by firing Priebus and Spicer. Those two gentlemen were deeply embedded in the Republican Party. People should remember that the Republican Party did not embrace the president during the primaries. We need a totally fresh start in American leadership.

There are only three things I know for sure, death, taxes, and the crazy drivers on Carl Albert!

After many attempts to get a new blue trash receptacle due to the trash man breaking my lid, I give up! I was told it would be handled months ago and as of two weeks ago but no it still is broken and the critters are still having a field day! I just do not know what to do anymore. I even booth my own and marked it for pickup due to broken one. Nope it was ignored and the trash was not picked up.

I am sorry that some people find Carl Albert an inconvenience but I personally like it. I can go through town now very easily to do my Saturday shopping at WalMart. Those lights seems to know when I was headed near and turned red every time. Now I can breeze on through, it is nice.

have learned it just doesn't matter how kind you are to people, the first time you tell them no or disagree, their attitudes change towards you and they begin the talk record the reaction and post it on Facebook the reaction when confronting people like this, it really is priceless.

Mom Thanks for nothing! Thank you for no birthday calls, no I miss you, no nothing for 4 years. I have been forgotten. Then you pop on Facebook about how much you love your kids? Just please stop!

$2 million Campaign Fund Built by Lt. Gov. Todd Lamb

Days after Lt. Gov. Todd Lamb discussed energy and his campaign for Governor with OK Energy Today, it's been reported his campaign fund totals nearly $2 million. The Tulsa World reports Lamb has so much money, he has far more than any of the 11 other candidates. And the primaries are more than 11 months away, giving the Republican hopeful more time to raise more money. The nearly $2 million was reflected in a quarterly filing period that ended June 30 and was on file with the Oklahoma Ethics Commission. Lamb transferred more than $1 million into the campaign and spent $102,400.62 so far. His total received was $2,086,399 and minus the expenditures, he has $1,983,998.68 left. But it will be a long, long haul for the other candidates, Democrats, Libertarians and Republicans alike. For example, former US Attorney Gary Richardson reports $5,757 in his campaign fund. Gary Jones, the State Auditor showed $22,311 as of the end of June. Drew Edmondson, the former Democratic Attorney General showed $256,506 in his fund. Oklahoma City Mayor Mick Cornett shows $178,000 in his fund for the same period.

New South Canadian River Bridge to Be Built at Purcell and Lexington

Three years after the Purcell-Lexington bridge over the South Canadian River was closed because of the discovery of cracks, the state is about to begin construction of a new bridge. Work is scheduled to begin this year on replacing the 79-year old U.S. 77/State Highway 39 that links the two cities. It could last 18 months before completion. Three years ago, the bridge was shut down for several weeks because cracks were discovered, prompting the Department of Transportation to begin environmental and design work on a new bridge. At the time, a chief engineer at O-DOT indicated the old bridge still had about 10 years of use remaining for motorists. The cracks forced the Department to begin a fast-track plan to design a new bridge.

Weeks after signing a $710 million deal to buy another company, Houston, Texas-based Kirby Corporation announced second quarter net earnings of nearly $26 million. Kirby, the firm that acquired United Holdings and United Engines in Oklahoma six years ago announced in June its acquisition of Stewart and Stevenson LLC, a subsidiary of the Houston-based Parman Capital group. United has 4 sites in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma while S and S has more than two dozen sites from the Rockies to the Gulf and East coasts. United Holdings is in the oilfield equipment manufacturing end while United Engines is a distributor and repair for Allison, Detroit Diesel, MTU and Isuzu. Kirby revealed its 2017 second quarter earnings per share were $0.48 compared with $0.72 a year earlier. The company indicated the drop in per share earnings did not include any impact from the pending purchase of Stewart and Stewart in Houston. Meanwhile consolidated revenues for the quarter totaled $473.3 million, up from the $441.6 million reported in the second quarter of 2016. And Kirby's President and CEO, David Grzebinski said it was a reflection of business trends consistent with late 2016 and the 2017 first quarter. "In particular, results in our land-based diesel engine business continue to drive higher, surpassing our expectations. While product demand in that market has been slow to build relative to upswings we've experienced in the past, service demand has been robust enough for us to reach near-peak operating margins, even on relatively low revenue," he said. The oil and gas industry's recovery in the past year has been important to Kirby and United Engines. The company is deeply involved in the production of high-speed diesel engines, transmissions and pumps used in hydraulic fracturing units. "We believe our decision to purchase S and S is well timed," added Grzebinski. "The transaction will unlock new strategic opportunities for our distribution and services business, and afford us an opportunity to expand the service capability at S and S."

Secretary Perdue Appoints New Leadership for Food Safety

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue today made two key appointments to help fulfill the vital mission of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to ensure the safety of the nation's food supply. Perdue announced that Carmen Rottenberg was selected as Acting Deputy Under Secretary for Food Safety and Paul Kiecker was named Acting Administrator for the Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS). The two will serve in those capacities until presidential nominees are confirmed by the Senate for those roles. In making the announcements, Secretary Perdue issued this statement: "Ensuring the safety of our nation's food supply is our most important responsibility, and it's one we undertake with great seriousness. Both Carmen and Paul have dedicated their careers to the mission of food safety and I am pleased to have appointed them to these important roles within the USDA," said Secretary Perdue. "I commend the work of the entire USDA's food safety team for painstakingly safeguarding the food we serve our families every single day." Background: Carmen Rottenberg was appointed Acting Deputy Under Secretary for the USDA's Office for Food Safety. In this position, she oversees development, implementation, and enforcement of all of FSIS regulations, policies, and programs. This appointment follows nearly six years in leadership roles in the FSIS Office of the Administrator, including serving as Chief of Staff, Chief Operating Officer and, most recently, Deputy Administrator. In those leadership roles, Rottenberg executed a budget of over $1 billion, prioritizing resources and resolving disputes, advancing the Agency's vision and goals, and leading innovative solutions to challenges in FSIS. She spearheaded strategic planning at FSIS and implemented numerous initiatives to strategically move the agency forward. Rottenberg implemented two major reorganizations, leading to a more streamlined, efficient agency better positioned to carry out its food safety mission. Through her leadership and oversight, an early governance process matured into an established systematic approach to agency decision-making, resulting in more deliberative, science-based decisions that consider enterprise-wide risks and benefits. Rottenberg led the very successful i-Impact initiative, which has increased the awareness of and engagement in FSIS's public health mission by the more than 9,000 employees throughout the Agency. Rottenberg joined FSIS as an Equal Employment Opportunity Specialist in 2007, and went on to become the Deputy Director of the Civil Rights Staff. She began her federal government career in the Federal Trade Commission's Office of General Counsel, and previously worked as law clerk at a small law firm in Fairfax, VA. She holds a B.A. in Political Science and Philosophy from Hope College in Holland, MI and a law degree from American

University's Washington College of Law. Paul Kiecker was named Acting Administrator for the FSIS. Throughout his 29 years with FSIS, he has been committed to a strong public health vision that has guided him to overcome obstacles, identify opportunities for

Statement of Secretary Perdue Regarding Japan's Planned Increase of Tariff on U.S. Frozen Beef

The government of Japan has announced that rising imports of frozen beef in the first quarter of the Japanese fiscal year (April-June) have triggered a safeguard, resulting in an automatic increase to Japan's tariff rate under the WTO on imports of frozen beef from the United States. The increase, from 38.5 percent to 50 percent, will begin August 1, 2017 and last through March 31, 2018. The tariff would affect only exporters from countries, including the United States, which do not have free trade agreements with Japan currently in force. U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue issued the following statement:

"I am concerned that an increase in Japan's tariff on frozen beef imports will impede U.S. beef sales and is likely to increase the United States' overall trade deficit with Japan. This would harm our important bilateral trade relationship with Japan on agricultural products. It would also negatively affect Japanese consumers by raising prices and limiting their access to high-quality U.S. frozen beef. I have asked representatives of the Japanese government directly and clearly to make every effort to address these strong concerns, and the harm that could result to both American producers and Japanese consumers."

U.S. exports of beef and beef products to Japan totaled $1.5 billion last year, making it the United States' top market.

Republican makes first move to work with Democrats on healthcare

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - U.S. Senator Lamar Alexander on Tuesday made the first move by a senior Republican to work with Democrats on repairing Obamacare after his party failed to repeal and replace the healthcare law, announcing work on bipartisan legislation to stabilize the individual health insurance market. Alexander, who chairs the Senate health committee, urged U.S. President Donald Trump to drop his threat to cut government subsidy payments to insurers that make Obamacare plans affordable and to allow the payments through September. The senator also said fellow lawmakers should fund those payments for one year. Alexander's announcement followed the spectacular failure last week by Senate Republicans to pass their own repeal or replacement of the Affordable Care Act, former President Barack Obama's signature domestic initiative also referred to as Obamacare. The Tennessee Republican said the Senate health committee "will hold hearings beginning the week of September 4 on the actions Congress should take to stabilize and strengthen the individual health insurance market so that Americans will be able to buy insurance at affordable prices in the year 2018." The goal, Alexander said, would be legislation sponsored by both parties that would stabilize the insurance market and help lower premiums in 2018 for the roughly 18 million Americans who buy health insurance in the individual market, instead of getting insurance through an employer. Trump, frustrated that he and Republicans have not been able to keep promises to repeal and replace Obamacare, has threatened to let the law implode, including by cutting off about $8 billion in subsidies that are used to make Obamacare health plans more affordable for low income Americans. Insurers, who are finalizing their insurance premium rates for 2018, have asked Congress to guarantee that those funds will stay in place for the rest of this year and 2018. Without the subsidies, they say they will need to raise premium rates by about 20 percent. Without an answer, insurers have filed preliminary rates based on different parameters: Some set rates that assumed the subsidies would be paid, others set rates that assumed they would not, and some submitted two different set of rates reflecting both outcomes. Senator Patty Murray, the top Democrat on the health panel, welcomed Alexander's statement and said she looked forward to working in a bipartisan manner to stabilize the healthcare market and reduce premiums. In the House, a bipartisan group of 43 lawmakers on Monday called for Congress to quickly stabilize the individual insurance market by appropriating money for the cost-sharing payments and creating a stability fund for states.

Lower Retail Beef Prices Pressure Dressed Beef

Predictably, retail beef features declined in the second half of July and this likely contributed to the down trend in the value of the cutout. It is not a particularly surprising occurrence and the sharp rise in beef prices during late spring and early summer probably contributed to retailers pulling beef off features once the peak grilling days were behind us. For week ending July 28 the retail beef feature activity index was down 8% from the previous year and it has averaged 6% under last year for the last three reported weeks. While beef features at retail have declined, fed cattle slaughter remains well above year ago levels. The higher slaughter is a function of feedlot placements earlier in the year and increased availability. Feedlot margins were quite robust in Q2 and the current futures market structure continues to incentivize feedlots to maintain a high marketing rate. Last week fed cattle slaughter was 511,000 head, 7.5% higher than a year ago and near the slaughter highs so far this year. Expectations are for fed slaughter to once again stay above 500,000 head this week as well compared to 475,000 head a year ago. Fed cattle weights are lower than last year, which has offset some of the increase in slaughter.

IS TECHNOLOGY MAKING YOU A ZOMBIE?

If you've watched late night television, it's likely you've come across a zombie-themed movie. Night of the Living Dead (1968) is a cult classic that presented audiences with a lot of gore for that era. But it can't hold a candle to shows like AMC's "The Walking Dead" or the plethora of zombie films that have been produced in the past few years. Despite the fact that I know all of it is fiction, one dark night I caught myself assessing the outside of my house to see where any zombie-vulnerable entry points might be. Crazy, right? But maybe not. With news of the upcoming Apple IOS update, we are learning that artificial - or augmented - reality is going to play a significant role with all I-phones after 6s. What is artificial reality, you may ask. Is it where you get to live in an adorable beach cabin and laze in a hammock all day? Unfortunately, that is real artificial reality. Apple says AR will allow people to do things that nobody can even imagine yet. There are some current game apps that will benefit from the new technology by being more lifelike, but they expect other software developers to go to town on this new frontier. Life with a cellphone is already pretty consumed especially for young people, and I'm not talking just young teens. I recently sat at a restaurant and watched a large table of 20 something's. They did talk to each other, but there wasn't one of them who didn't spend as much time looking down at the phone in their hand. So all the zombie movies may be focusing on the wrong thing. It's not an alien virus, or a chemical weapons attack or even a governmental experiment that will turn us into walking creatures that don't acknowledge their surroundings. It's our phones and the technology that drives them. Think constant contact with your phone isn't harmful? Listen to this experiment conducted by five middle school girls in Denmark. A common science-fair project is to grow seeds in varying environs. The girls placed six trays in a room next to two Wi-Fi routers. All plants received the same light and water. But in less than two weeks, the seeds near the router had turned brown and died. The seeds not exposed to WiFi were thriving. Not unexpectedly, various companies and agencies suggested that their experiment was flawed and had more to do with the heat of the router than any dangerous invisible rays. But officials in The Netherlands have noted 70% of all trees in urban areas show symptoms of a viral infection. Before the boom of modern day technology, less than 10% of the trees were affected. Sounds like a whole lot of smoke. And you know the saying about fire closely following. We may not be zombies yet, but with enough nights of sleeping with the phone right next to our heads, who knows? So if you see someone walking slowly, with their head tilted downward and a glazed look in their eyes, don't be alarmed. It's probably not a zombie. But you might go ahead and install a few extra deadbolts on your doors just in case.

By: Gina Stanley

ASTROLOGY UPDATE

ARIES (Mar. 21- April 20) Property investments, insurance, taxes, or inheritance should bring you financial gains. Romance could develop through social activities or short trips. You will be able to work in fine detail and present the best possible proposal.

TAURUS (Apr. 21- May 21) You can help other people with their financial problems by setting up a budget for them. Friendships will be ruined if you let too many people get involved in any disputes. Expect to experience a sudden reversal of fortune.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) You will be quite excitable today. Uncertain changes regarding your personal life are evident. Frustrations and limitations could cause anxiety today.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Hard work will payoff if you refrain from expressing your opinion to superiors. Opportunities to travel will develop through peers. Discuss your objectives with partners or peers.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Take the time to do something nice for your friends and relatives. Your mind is on moneymaking ventures. Opposition is present and you should be prepared to counteract it as best you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 -Sept. 23) Children may be on your mind. Socialize with friends, but don't overspend on lavish entertainment. Change will be required to make your life more harmonious.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 -Oct. 23) Try not to judge too quickly. You have two choices; Get out on your own, or bend to your mate's whims. If you're already in a relationship, use this added energy passionately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Emotional disputes will only end in sorrow. Problems with colleagues are likely. You will be able to catch up on overdue paper work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 -Dec. 21) Use your creative talent in order to accomplish your goals. You will find your personal partner taxing today. Get help to finish a project if you need it.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22.- Jan. 20) Pamper yourself; the self esteem it brings you will be most gratifying. You can avoid hassles by sticking to your work and refusing to get involved in gossip or idle chatter. You should focus on moneymaking matters and stay away from emotional disputes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 -Feb. 19) Your self confidence will attract members of the opposite sex Take things slowly, especially for the sake of those you love. You can learn a great deal more if you listen rather than rant and rave.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) Children may be difficult to handle. You may be tired of working for someone else. It's time to reevaluate your motives.
