The Deadliest Job in WWII My high school assignment was to ask a veteran about World War II. Since my father had served in the Philippines during the war, I chose him. After a few basic questions, I very gingerly asked, "Did you ever kill anyone?" Dad got quiet. Then, in a soft voice, he said, "Probably. I was the cook."

What An Ugly Duck... My husband was waterskiing when he fell into the river. As the boat circled to pick him up, he noticed a hunter sitting in a duck boat in the reeds. My husband put his hands in the air and joked, "Don't shoot!" The hunter ...

It's the first day of school. The school bus stops and a little blonde girl gets on. The bus driver says, "Oh, what a darling little girl! Where did you get those blonde curls?" The little girl replies, "From my mom!" At the next stop a little redhead gets on. The bus driver says, "Oh, you lovely thing! Where ever did you get those gorgeous strawberry curls?" "I look just like my dad!" says the second girl. At the next stop, a girl with green hair gets on. The busdriver is a little shocked, but she pulls herself together and says "My, what unusual green hair! Where

Trump signs order to move controversial oil pipelines forward

U.S. President Donald Trump signed two executive orders on Tuesday to move forward with construction of the controversial Keystone XL and Dakota Access oil pipelines, rolling back key Obama administration environmental actions in favor of expanding energy infrastructure.

While oil producers in Canada and North Dakota are expected to benefit from a quicker route for crude oil to U.S. Gulf Coast refineries, a revival of the projects would mark a bitter defeat for Native American tribes and climate activists, who vowed to fight the decisions through legal action.

Trump campaigned on promises to increase domestic energy production and before taking office indicated he supported completion of the Dakota pipeline and re-starting the C$8 billion ($6.1 billion) Keystone XL project, which was rejected in 2015 by then-President Barack Obama.

Protesters had rallied for months against plans to route the $3.8 billion Dakota Access Pipeline beneath a lake near the Standing Rock Sioux reservation, saying it threatened water resources and sacred Native American sites.

It is not yet clear how exactly the orders will move the projects forward.

In a statement, the Standing Rock Sioux said they would fight the decision.

"Americans know this pipeline was unfairly rerouted towards our nation and without our consent. The existing pipeline route risks infringing on our treaty rights, contaminating our water and the water of 17 million Americans downstream," said Dave Archambault II, chairman of the Standing Rock tribe.

The North Dakota Petroleum Council, the trade group for the state's oil producers who are relying on Dakota Access to expand their crude transport options, cheered Trump's order. We think this is a great step forward for energy security in America," said Ron Ness, the council's president.

The more than 800,000 bpd Keystone XL pipeline linking Canada's oil sands to the U.S. Gulf Coast was conceived nearly a decade ago. Since then, however, the U.S. shale revolution has redefined oil flows, with domestic refiners suddenly finding themselves awash with plentiful supply and needing fewer foreign imports.

Canadian Natural Resources Minister Jim Carr said in Calgary that TransCanada Corp's Keystone XL has all the regulatory approvals it needs in Canada, and that the project would be "very positive for Canada."

Environmental activists broadly opposed the Keystone XL pipeline and campaigned against it for more than seven years, eventually winning a victory when Obama rejected the project in 2015.

"President Trump appears to be ignoring the law, public sentiment and ethical considerations with this executive order aimed at resurrecting the long-rejected Keystone XL pipeline and circumventing the ongoing environmental review process for the highly controversial Dakota Access pipeline," Trip Van Noppen, president of nonprofit environmental law organization Earthjustice said in a statement.

TransCanada shares last traded up 2.6 percent on the Toronto Stock Exchange. The company did not immediately respond to a request for comment on Tuesday.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in January said it would begin an environmental assessment that could delay the Dakota project further. It is not clear if Trump's order supersedes that move, and the Standing Rock statement suggested the order circumvents the environmental review.

In Cannon Ball, North Dakota, protesters, many of whom have stayed at the camp for months, expressed concern about the order but said they would continue fighting to protect the environment.

"I'm staying here. I'm standing with the natives. This is our future," said Benjamin Buffalo, 45, a Blackfeet tribal member from Browning, Montana. "I disagree with what Trump did because he's ruining the future for our children."

The Standing Rock Sioux tribe won a key victory when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in early December turned down Energy Transfer Partners' request for an easement to tunnel under the nearby Missouri River.

Most of the 1,172-mile (1,885 km) Dakota pipeline was completed by the summer of 2016, except for a small section under Lake Oahe, a reservoir that forms part of the river.

Trump on Monday met with leaders of labor unions, including the Building and Construction trades group and the Laborers International Union of North America, who have been vocal supporters of both pipeline projects. Both groups had endorsed Trump rival Hillary Clinton in the 2016 U.S. election, but disagreed with her opposition to the Keystone pipeline.

In a statement on Tuesday, the U.S. Teamsters Union noted that the pipelines would "put thousands of Americans" to work.

Trump, speaking on Tuesday in Washington, said Keystone XL would create 28,000 jobs, but that figure is at odds with a 2014 U.S. State Department environmental study, which said the project would create 3,900 U.S. construction jobs and 35 permanent jobs.

Shares of ETP, the company building the 450,000 barrel-a-day Dakota pipeline, were up 3.7 percent in U.S. trading.

Trump owned ETP stock through at least mid-2016, according to financial disclosure forms, and ETP's chief executive, Kelcy Warren, donated $100,000 to his campaign.

MRHC physician earns nation board certification

Kamron Torbati, MD, an obstetrician and gynecologist at McAlester Regional Health Center's Southeast Clinic, has earned his national board certification.

Dr. Torbati was notified Jan. 13 by the American Board of Obstetrics & Gynecology that he has been certified as a Diplomate of the board. "We congratulate Kamron for achieving his board certification," said MRHC CEO David Keith. "This accomplishment is yet another reason we are pleased he is a member of our team of health providers serving Southeast Oklahoma."

The CEO noted board certification is voluntary for licensed specialists; only 71 percent of all licensed obstetrician/gynecologists are board-certified. A doctor earns initial Board Certification by passing written and oral examinations followed by the career-long learning and assessment process required by a rigorous certification program. To maintain Board Certification, a doctor must actively keep pace with the latest advances in his or her specialty and demonstrate best practices for patient safety, communications and ethics.

The American Board of Obstetrics & Gynecology is among 24 boards of the American Board of Medical Specialties.

Kamron Torbati, MD, began practicing Obstetrics and Gynecology at Southeast Clinic, an affiliate of MRHC, in July 2015.

"I have a passion for women's health and bringing high quality medical and surgical care to a community that needs me," Dr. Torbati said. "I'm a strong believer that serving as an OB/Gyn is a particularly special role, even among doctors. Being good at this and serving my patients well is something I take great pride in."

After graduating high school in Fresno, Calif., he served in the US Marine Corps for six years. Following his military service, he pursued his medical degree and trained in California, West Indies, and New Jersey. He also holds a Master's Degree in Public Health.

Dr. Torbati's practice is housed on the MRHC Campus in Suite 301 of the Physician's Building, also known as the copper-topped building, at 4 East Clark Bass Blvd. For an appointment, call 918-421-6797.

MRHC is a regional 171-bed general acute care public trust hospital serving a region comprised of eight counties in Southeast Oklahoma. With more than 800 employees, the hospital offers a wide array of clinics, and ancillary and outpatient programs.

Looking for Western Cherokee Texas Band descendants who settled in Oklahoma Texanna Community. Chief Tahchee (Dutch) and Band left Texas in 1831. Following a journey of 95 days they arrived along the Mouth of the Canadian River and Arkansas River. A settlement was established at Dutch Creek (Duchess Creek), Texanna, McIntosh county, Oklahoma by 1839. Contact Ruby Thorne, Vice Chief of Western Cherokee Nation, Ft. Smith, Arkansas. (rlthorne61@hotmail.com), 918-484-5285 or 918-698-0423.

Americans expense by the greedy. They say you get what you pay for, well with this vote I pray I helped pay to get back what America has lost. Thank you for this forum.

Social media, the root of this evil our nation faces now. Civil unrest is due to this evil device and the media is right behind it.

Is everyone trying to get a piece of the pie? I have been slammed with emails, cell phone calls and my media sites with people wanting money "for the cause". Scam artists!

“CUSTOMER REVIEWS FROM A BRAND YOU TRUST.”

The media has done a bang up job at playing puppet master with the American people. They have spun for years their views and turned them into inaccurate "truths" and that those have bought into it. We have got to open our eyes and look at the truth, relying on the media for our facts has gotten this world into a big mess. Thank you for letting me sound off.

It is beautiful thing to watch Trump erase Obama's legacy day by day with just a pen....

Who needs Hollywood any longer, all the true "entertainers" are right here running wild all over the place..

American citizens are urged to come together, a house divided cannot stand.

Back in the day when young kids got into a argument or got into a fight, they would get it out and more than likely become friends for life. Adults use to take up the command and tell them to knock it off and it was over. Are we no longer are capable to cope with any issue? Are we teaching our children that life now that when we have an issue we create a permanent divide? We no longer work it out? Look at adults today, it is the same for them as well. Life has changed and not for the better.

I cannot stand Trump and think he is a complete disaster, however, attacking his son even I have to say hold on a bit! This is too much.

The humans that need to be replaced are the ones blackballing people with different ideas from employment.

I was part of the 30 million women march on November 8, 2017, where we elected Donald J. Trump as our present. Scoff....1 million, not even close.

As an immigrant who went through the very long process to become an American citizen, I do not have any issue with the president making everyone else do the same, legally.

I am a proud liberal, yes I said it. I believe in the rights of ALL people, not just the select few. I believe my body is mine and the government needs to step out! WE are entitled to all liberties great and small and no one is allowed to take it from us!

IT'S OVER FOLKS!

As my husband is laughing at the idiotic protesters on TV, I serve him dinner and say, "Aren't you glad I'm not a feminist, honey?"

When will the media wake up and realize they are the root of this division? Enough is enough, some of these organizations need to go.

CNN anchor Carol Costello actually thought Michelle Obama signs things into law. Officially dumbest network in media.

Wikileaks vows to go after Trump over 'breach of promise . . . more gratuitous than Clinton' concealment. Here we go.

As a man of GOD, American and veteran, I am part of the HUGE amount of registered Democratic men out here that made the conscience decision to vote against my own party. These past four years I have seen and felt the sting of the Obama agenda. Losing my job that I had for over twenty years, then my home and all my savings because our company was not large enough to withstand the financial burden of the competition from cheap labor forces overseas, that were gladly farmed out at mine and millions of other hard working

I just got my Vyve TV bill and they went up on my rates. They do that every so often but do not tell you why or when, you just get a bill and there it is. Then I turned on my TV and the picture sticks for hours. You get a hold of them and they don't want to do anything. How can anyone afford this at $1200 a year! I feel the city council who is in charge of the franchise fees, to call them to come down and explain why these things are happening and then give them 30 days, improve or lower the rates or get out of town.

USDA Invests $13.6 Million in Citrus Greening Research

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) today announced four grants totaling more than $13.6 million to combat a scourge on the nation's citrus industry, citrus greening disease, aka Huanglongbing. The funding is made possible through NIFA's Specialty Crop Research Initiative (SCRI) Citrus Disease Research and Extension Program, authorized by the 2014 Farm Bill.

"The economic impact of citrus greening disease is measured in the billions," said NIFA Director Sonny Ramaswamy. "NIFA investments in research are critical measures to help the citrus industry survive and thrive, and to encourage growers to replant with confidence." Huanglongbing (HLB) is currently the most devastating citrus disease worldwide. HLB was first detected in Florida in 2005 and has since affected all of Florida's citrus-producing areas leading to a 75 percent decline in Florida's $9 billion citrus industry. Fifteen U.S. States or territories are under full or partial quarantine due to the presence of the Asian citrus psyllid (ACP), a vector for HLB.

Since 2009, USDA has invested more than $400 million to address citrus greening, including more than $57 million through the Citrus Disease Research and Extension Program since 2014. Awards for grant applications submitted in FY 2016 include:

Clemson University, Clemson, South Carolina, $4,274,523

Regents of the University of California, Riverside, California, $5,112,000

Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa, $2,476,099

USDA Agricultural Research

Service (ARS), Athens, Georgia, $1,821,197
Funded projects include Clemson University researchers using naturally HLB-resistant citrus trees to develop new resistant varieties using the CRISPR-Cas9 genome editing tool. The Regents of the University of California project will design and identify HLB bactericides based on both natural and nanotechnology approaches. Researchers at Iowa State University will investigate the use of sustainable, naturally occurring soil bacteria to control ACP. The ARS project will identify and assess the effectiveness and economic viability of chemotherapy treatment options. More information on these projects is available on the NIFA website. Among past projects, the University of Florida developed bactericides to help recover fruit production in HLB-affected orchards. Research at the University of California used virulence proteins to develop strategies for creating citrus rootstocks that are immune to HLB. NIFA is a member of the federal Multi-Agency Coordination (MAC) group to help deliver near-term tools to citrus growers to combat HLB. In addition, NIFA support to the National Plant Diagnostic Network This is an external link or third-party site outside of the United States Department of Agriculture

(USDA) website. helps plant diagnostic laboratories share best practices and expedite diagnoses and screening for ACP and HLB. The network coordinates diagnostician training in HLB with USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service's Plant Protection and Quarantine. These services enable rapid and accurate diagnoses and support U.S. food security. Since 2009, NIFA has invested in and advanced innovative and transformative initiatives to solve societal challenges and ensure the long-term viability of agriculture.

NIFA's integrated research, education and extension programs support the best and brightest scientists and extension personnel whose work results in user-inspired, groundbreaking discoveries that combat childhood obesity, improve and sustain rural economic growth, address water availability issues, increase food production, find new sources of energy, mitigate climate variability and ensure food safety.

Internet Safety

How many times have you seen on Face book or other social media sites about someone going on vacation, going to the store or being out of town for some other reason? Majority of us have done this or know someone who has done this. This is just an open invitation for a burglar to go and burglarize your home. Do not post comments about going out of town for the week or even a night. Do not post photos while on vacation and avoid checking in to places, as this is also a record of when you are not home and gives a burglar time to pay your home an unwanted visit. You will have plenty of time to post your photos when you return from your trip. Be careful of what you put on these sites and who you share this information with. Addresses and phone numbers could help potential burglars or stalkers locate you much more easily. Identity theft is made simpler by every piece of information the thief can obtain about you. Do not post information that could give crooks information about your password hints. Some common ones include your mother's maiden name, your pet's name, or the name of the street you grew up on. Do not post pictures of checks, credit cards, account numbers, your bank or credit card companies. Don't make comments on these sites about your finances, even in general. For instance, if you win a thousand dollars at the casino, do not post this on Face book. This could make you a potential target of a burglary or robbery. Anything you don't want others to share, don't post it. This includes your status, photos, or even complaints about work or some other person. This could affect your job or even your social life. If you have any doubts about whether a comment or photo is appropriate for public viewing, it's best not to post it. Social media has become a very popular and effective tool in our personal lives, businesses and has even helped police departments in solving crimes. Just be careful with what you post or who you friend. Don't put any information out there that you don't want everybody to know. One test that I always teach is if you can't say it in front of a crowd, then don't say it or send it on the Internet. I am the Community Services Officer, Jeremy Busby. If you are in need of Child Safety Programs, Fraud Prevention programs, or would like us to set up an information booth at your community event, the programs are free and you can contact me at (918)423-9657 or jeremy.busby@cityofmcalester.com. If you have any information regarding a crime, contact the McAlester Police Departments Criminal Investigations Division at (918)421-4917 or Email don.hass@cityofmcalester.com.

You may remain anonymous. To report any other criminal activity, contact the McAlester Police Department at (918)423-1212 or if it is an Emergency dial 911. Remember, if you wouldn't want to say it in front of a crowd, don't say it online. Stay Safe and God Bless!

ASK ABOUT OUR SENIOR & MILITARY DISCOUNTS

CAN WOMEN LEARN A LESSON FROM GIRLS? YOU BET.

I spent last weekend in Dallas. No, I wasn't marching but I did see a few women with

By: Gina Stanley

By: Gina Stanley

signs walking around downtown. I was there with my daughter. Her middle school cheer squad was competing at the National Cheerleader Association (NCA) Nationals. This is the final stop for squads looking for a national title. You may be rolling your eyes. It's just a bunch of prissy, entitled teen girls running around in short skirts, right? I may have thought that a couple of years ago. But that was before I was informed and knowledgeable about the work that goes into learning a four-minute routine. These girls are athletes in the truest sense of the word, using their physical strength to lift others into the air in various positions. Using their speed and flexibility to tumble, dance, cheer LOUDLY and look pleasant while doing it. At the end of the weekend, our squad finished in 2nd by .07. A heartbreaker. But their coach - and the coach of the winning team - prepared them to be gracious and classy. When our team was announced as runner-up, the winning team knew they had just been crowned national champs. But they sat quietly while our girls collected their trophy. That's respect. When the winning team was finally announced, they jumped and screamed in delight as only middle school cheerleaders can. Our girls immediately went to them with hugs of congratulations. That's humility and character. So that made me think again of the women I'd seen outside the convention center. One carried a poster depicting our President's penis to a pickle. I have no idea what that meant. Others glared at our girls as they walked by. They didn't seem to appreciate their unique contribution to future womanhood. When one girl made a positive comment about Trump in response to their anti-Trump chants, their glare turned into obvious anger. I've asked friends who supported this march why they did. The responses really depended on the person. One kind-hearted lady, whose political activism has directly coincided with the election of Donald Trump, noted only the positivity at the march she attended. Hymns were sung and artistic posters reflected the notions of love and acceptance. She felt a sense of peace and camaraderie, not divisiveness. Another cited the need for equality for all. She saw this as a chance for women to stand up for women of every race, socio-economic status, or religion. She even noted that they marched for those women who are blind to the fact that they should be marching. That's so generous. Look, I get the need for people to vent. But let's be honest. This is less about securing positive outcomes for women, and more about making sure everyone knows they are totes unhappy about the election of our 45th president. Let's talk disrespect of women. As despicable as Trump's fifteen-year old comment was about grabbing women, a previous president actually had a sexual act with a young intern in the Oval Office. If that's not abuse of power, and the ultimate disrespect for his wife, I don't know what is. Feminists didn't march in the street against him. They defended him. Let's talk equal pay. For the past decade, the gap for White House employees has lingered at 13% less for women. It didn't change during Obama's administration. So where was this protest during his tenure? Trump hasn't even had the chance to tighten that gap. Will the marchers be in support of him if he does? Let's talk the LGQTB community. Trump is the first president in history to begin his presidency in favor of gay marriage. But that's not enough apparently. The marchers chose to ignore that and pretend that gay people are in danger of being forced into conversion therapy. Nonsense. There are so many other aspects of this movement that are troubling. Foremost, women are buying into the notion of dividing themselves. When they didn't allow a pro-life group to be active in the women's march, they said loud and clear that their viewpoint on abortion is the only acceptable one. They say this movement is meant to give women a voice, yet they are the ones doing the silencing. As I drove out of Dallas, I couldn't help but think that my 13-year-old daughter and her friends had a better grasp on humanity than the marchers we saw. Their squad didn't win, but they accepted the outcome with grace. Instead of blaming the judges, they are going back to work, practicing on things that could make them more successful next time. Truthfully, they thought they should have won. We all did. But watching my daughter's lips as she approached the winning squad, I knew she not only grasped the notion of good sportsmanship, but of healthy competitiveness as well. "Good job," she said. "We'll see you next year." That's being a strong lady not a nasty woman. Some grown-ups could learn that lesson.

appeal for the beef industry because it delivers fast, accurate, safe and economical pregnancy diagnostic results. The technology works on all ruminants, including cattle, sheep, goats and bison. A specific test using ELISA technology which produces fast results has been developed for use exclusively in cattle. BioPRYN evaluates the blood (more specifically, the serum or plasma) of ruminants for a protein called Pregnancy Specific Protein B (PSPB). PSPB is produced by the placenta, and therefore pregnant animals will have the protein in their blood. Farm personnel or your veterinarian can draw blood samples from the tail or jugular vein, which is an easy-to-learn procedure. Blood samples of at least 2ml per animal should be collected in individual vacuum tubes and labeled with each animal's identification number. The tubes can then be boxed and sent to a BioPRYN lab for testing. Heifers and cows can be tested at 28 days or later, after breeding. Lactating cows have residual PSPB from previous pregnancy until 78 days after calving. To eliminate the risk of a false-positive result, breeders are cautioned to take the sample at 28 days or more after breeding, and 78 days or more after calving. BioPRYN testing has been shown to have an overall accuracy rate of 97 percent. In fact, the test is 99% accurate in detecting open cows, with only 1% showing false-open (false-negative). Most testing labs have the results ready within twenty-four hours after the samples arrive at the lab. Most BioPRYN testing labs charge from $2.50 to $3.00 per sample. Needles and tubes can be obtained from veterinarians or veterinarian supply companies. BioPRYN allows producers to diagnose pregnancy more rapidly after breeding than compared to palpation, with no risk to damaging the fetus. Cows diagnosed open can then be re-bred more quickly, resulting in tighter calving intervals and considerable savings. For more information on BioPRYN contact your local OSU Extension office or your veterinarian

ASTROLOGY UPDATE

ARIES (Mar. 21- April 20) Try not to overspend on friends or family. Children will keep you busy. It's time to reevaluate your motives.

TAURUS (Apr. 21- May 21) You may have taken on a little too much, but you will enjoy every minute of it. Do a little shopping. You're likely to find a real bargain. Sit tight. Things aren't as bad as they appear.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) You will feel so much better about yourself if you can control your addictions. Don't push your opinions on others today or you may find yourself in the doghouse. Don't overspend on friends or children.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Get busy making those changes to your home. Opportunities to get ahead are evident. Too much talk might lead to hassles.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Try to stay calm and understand both sides of the situation. Your interest in religion and philosophy may lead you to specific destinations. A residential move may be in order.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 -Sept. 23) Consider a trial separation if you and your mate just can't come to terms. Don't let individuals with wild schemes talk you into a financial deal that is not likely to be successful. Your personal life will be disrupted if you have been too busy with business.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 -Oct. 23) Exercise is always a good way to relieve stress. Hide your cards and learn to say no. Travel will be favorable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Don't blow situations out of proportion or you could find that others will misinterpret what really happened. You should be able to get a lot done. Don't let your partner goad you into wearing your heart on your sleeve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 -Dec. 21) Children will keep you busy. You need a job with more responsibility and a higher wage. Expect to have problems with the ones you love.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22- Jan. 20) Your partner may not understand your mood swings but if you are willing to communicate, a lot of grief can be avoided. Concentrate on your career and on making money. Use your head and do things to your liking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 -Feb. 19) You will have a little more energy than usual. Work hard on improving your living quarters. You will be able to make changes regarding your living arrangements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) Travel will be fun and entertaining. Hidden assets can be doubled if you play your cards correctly. Don't exaggerate.
